Wheel information

Please note the following information relating to wheels:

Aluminium wheels with a high-gloss turned finish, or polished or partly polished aluminium wheels must not be used in the event of wintry road conditions. Due to the manufacturing process, the rim surfaces do not possess sufficient anti-corrosion protection and are at risk of long-term damage due to road salt or similar materials.

Information about fuel consumption, CO₂ emissions and efficiency classes for the ranges depends on the set of tyres/wheels used.

For more information about the official fuel consumption figures and the official, specific CO₂ emissions of new passenger cars, please consult the document entitled "Guidelines on fuel consumption, CO₂ emissions and electric power consumption of new passenger cars". Sportiness made easy.

Just as strong as steel but 50% lighter – these two characteristics of carbon are the reason behind this sought-after material’s worldwide success on the race track. Audi’s first LMP sports car – the R8R launched in 1999 – was based on a monocoque made from carbon fibre materials.

Today, the world of motorsport is synonymous with the use of carbon fibre-reinforced plastic, or CFRP for short. At the Audi technical centre for carbon-fibre reinforced plastics in Neckarsulm, 50 specialists research new procedures for using carbon in the automotive industry. The aim is to improve the lightweight construction potential of this innovative material through production concepts tailored to the material properties, and to extend the use of carbon beyond the sports car segment. With exterior mirror housings and the tailgate spoiler manufactured entirely from carbon, you can already choose to experience the fascination of this super-light material today with your Audi A4.
